—The first disciples is the subject for your consideration at your Sunday school next Sunday. Note how noiselessly Jesus began his work. To do great things we need not make a great display. Observe the value Jesus sets upon individual conversions. By those the whole heavenly company will be made up. First, last and always we are to think of Christ as the sinner's Saviour, through the atoning sacrifice. The joy of discipleship is sure to overflow; it doubles itself by seeking others to share it; it is also eager to have others honor its new-found Saviour. It is by personal testimony that the knowledge of Jesus is extended, and that others are persuaded to receive him. "One lighted torch serves to light another." Would you know whether Jesus is all that others profess to have found him to be? Do not stand aloof, hugging or harboring doubts. "Come and see."

—Farmers that undertake to sow oats last week are now thoroughly convinced that they were a little premature. "Things are not always what they seem," and more especially Missouri weather.

—Lewis Bauler, of Clay township, left Monday for Prairie Center, Kansas, where he goes to take charge of his quarter section farm. He sold his farm in this county, eighty acres to E. Brumback for $3,000, eighty to Harvey Hunter, for $2,500.

—The Forest City Mills were formerly accepted last week by the proprietors, Lucas & Oren, and they are now running to their fullest capacity. It is now a 7-double stand, full roller mill and is without doubt one of the finest equipped mills on the Missouri river. When we say the flour they are now making is second to none outside of St. Louis, we believe we express the opinion of every housewife who gives their flour a fair trial. The proprietors are accommodating gentlemen and are ready to do a general exchange business. Give the Forest City Mills a chance.

—The Board of Directors of the Nodaway Valley Fair Association, at a recent meeting decided that each of the twelve directors should plant out twenty shade trees on their fair grounds and to day, Friday April 9th was the date selected for the work. This is highly commendable on the part of the directors and they extend a cordial invitation to all citizens to join them in this worthy enterprise. We hope every citizen that can possibly do so will be on hand with a liberal supply of young trees and thus contribute toward making their fair grounds the most beautiful in the State Fairgrounds.
